The Theme

Sustainability is need of the hour and the most relevant issues in the contemporary times. Selfishly pursuing modernization, human have frequently compromised with the requirement of a more sustainable society. The term sustainable aims to bring a balance between meeting the requirements of what the present demand while not overlooking the needs of future generation. It acknowledges nature's requirements along the human's aim to work towards the development of different aspects of society for deliberating better future for the coming generation. Sustainability encourages programs, initiatives, equity and action towards the better utilization of resources in the area of human, social, economic and environment. The proactive approach of social sustainability helps in achieving sustainable development along the line of SDG-2030 by UNDP, which helps in the survival of society.

Against this backdrop, the Post-Congress of World Anthropology Congress-2023 under the United Indian Anthropology Forum (UIAF-WAC-2023) is being organised jointly by the Sambalpur University, Gangadhar Meher University and the Centre of Excellence: Regional Development and Tribal Studies, Sambalpur University to bring together researchers from the fields of social sciences, academia, policymakers, representative from public and private sectors across the globe to discuss the thematic components of sustainability which promotes innovative idea and intervention-based solution towards transforming society.
